

On September 13, 2007 the General Assembly of the United Nations overwhelmingly adopted the UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples last September. This landmark declaration sets out the individual and collective rights of the world's 370 million indigenous peoples, calls for the maintenance and strengthening of their cultural identities, and emphasizes their right to pursue development in keeping with their own needs and aspirations.

The Harper Government was one of only 4 nations of 147 nations voting that voted against it.

The United Food and Commercial Workers Canada stands in solidarity with all First Nations Peoples in demanding that the Harper government live up to the standards set out in the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples and reverse its position immediately. The dignity and respect we demand as trade unionists and social justice activists for our members in their workplaces is the same dignity and respect demanded by all Indigenous Peoples in the Declaration.
